Grain-changing goodness!

Wholegrains are a good source of fibre and contain essential vitamins and minerals. Research shows that eating lots of wholegrain foods can lower risks of health complications such as type 2 diabetes, heart disease and strokes. What's more, fibre also supports gut health and reduces the risk of bowel cancer, and is found in more than just wholegrains. Fruit, vegetables and plant protein like beans, lentils and chickpeas are full of it too.

Source of fibre

OUR FIBRE COMMITMENT

We're excited to be the first UK supermarket to set ambitious fibre-boosting targets spanning our entire product offering.

By 2026, we plan to increase the total fibre sold in tonnage by 20%, and by 2030, we aim for wholegrains to make up 25% of all grains we sell.

Episode 5 with The Knights

A Lidl batching saves a lot. Not only has it saved our Batch From Scratch families money, but it's also freed up more time for them to spend together. It's a win-win!

Single parent of two, Darren, juggles his full-time teaching job with busy family life. Despite trying his best, mealtimes are repetitive and not very exciting, and he often relies on sauce jars and convenience food to get the job done, impacting their health and his already tight budget.

Watch Joe and Suzanne help Darren make easy, homemade alternatives and experiment with different foods for a healthier balanced diet. Not only does this new way of cooking please his pocket and free up more family time, but the tasty, new dishes wow his kids. It's smiles all round!
