Grain-changing goodness!

Wholegrains are a good source of fibre and contain essential vitamins and minerals. Research shows that eating lots of wholegrain foods can lower risks of health complications such as type 2 diabetes, heart disease and strokes. What's more, fibre also supports gut health and reduces the risk of bowel cancer, and is found in more than just wholegrains. Fruit, vegetables and plant protein like beans, lentils and chickpeas are full of it too.

OUR FIBRE COMMITMENT

We're excited to be the first UK supermarket to set ambitious fibre-boosting targets spanning our entire product offering.

By 2026, we plan to increase the total fibre sold in tonnage by 20%, and by 2030, we aim for wholegrains to make up 25% of all grains we sell.

DID YOU KNOW?
The UK recommendation is to eat 30g of fibre a day

Episode 6 with
The Evans

A Lidl batching saves a lot. Not only has it saved our Batch from Scratch families money, but it's also freed up more time for them to spend together. It's a win-win!

Dom and wife Kellie are full-time carers for their two sons, Xander, who has Cerebral palsy, and Lucas with Down syndrome. With next to no time for meal planning and everyone wanting to eat something different, they rely on quick and easy convenience food, hitting their health and pocket. As Dom is the main cook, he worries that he's not providing enough healthy, nutritious meals within the family budget.

This week, Joe and Suzanne help Dom embrace the batch-cooking way by showing him some simple, one-cook meals that will keep everyone happy round the dinner table, plus save time and money.
